

This comment is in reference to Alltel owning both Cellular bands in Louisiana-6. I don't believe Alltel should be allowed to control both cellular bands.

The license should be sold to another company that already owns a license in a bordering MSA or RSA. This would be the best action to keep competition and a choice of service in the area. This would also provide customers better service and more choices.

I am from Minnesota, but can speak from experience of using cellular service where there are not a lot of choices, and the land is divided into too many pieces owned by too many companies.

If there are no bordering companies interested in the license, it should be returned to the FCC and included in a future auction.
